Indian Open brings finest golfers home

Diksha Dagar

Every time I play the Hero Women's Indian Open, it feels different from most other tournaments. As professional golfers, we spend a lot of time travelling and competing overseas, so playing an international event in our own country is special. This year, the excitement around Indian women's golf has grown further following our success at the Asian Games.

Women's sport needs commitment over many years to build an audience, create opportunities and give athletes a platform to perform. Hero MotoCorp's support has strengthened the talent pipeline in India while drawing the world's finest women golfers home. Their support in bolstering domestic golf through a local circuit is also a big boost for women golfers.
